COURSE DESCRIPTIONS⁽²⁾

INTERNATIONAL – EU AFFAIRS

RETHINKING THE EUROPEAN UNION

This module takes an in-depth look at the state of the European Union in the 21st century in the wake of the Eurozone crisis. Following an overview of the origins of the current crisis, this module aims to examine critically its consequences and broad effects on the European Union. The module attempts to characterise the European Union as a polity-in-the-making, investigating how far integration has advanced in a number of areas. In the light of the current crisis, it discusses the challenges to the traditional pillars of EU integration – identity, legitimacy and solidarity – in turn questioning the sustainability of the present model of regional integration.

INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE: POLICY & PRACTICE

Considering internationalization and globalization as an accelerator of changes, evolutions as well as a challenge in many aspects, this module shall search the existing legal and policy alternatives in the wake of substantial violations of human rights.

The class should question the appearance and development of a “system of international justice” over the past two decades and how this system functions. It will consider war crimes trials before international, hybrid international-national, and national courts. It will wrestle with criticisms of international justice and how these can be overcome.

Students will be expected to read a variety of texts on human rights topics, from news accounts, to human rights reports, to op-eds to first-person accounts to theoretical essays. They will be asked to think about and react to this material, both in class and via written assignments.

REASSESSING THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN THE EUROPEAN PUBLIC SPHERE

This course is an examination of the social and political dynamics currently shaping the management of religions in the European public sphere. The focus will be particularly on the intertwined relationship between religions and migration as it is represented by the notion of “Muslim immigrants” reaching “secular Europe”.

This dichotomous and simplistic view has been negatively affected by Europe’s multiple crises, which escalate with the resurgence of an “Islamic” terrorist threat and the growth of right-wing extremism and populist movements. Therefore, the course engages in critically investigating the multifaceted meanings of ‘secular’, ‘religious’ and ‘secular public realm’ in today’s Europe.

Presenting the historical legacies and the different types of political secularism currently at play in the European context, it closely analyses specific controversial issues, including wearing ostentatious religious symbols; Islamic preaching and the construction of mosques; and the flourishing of halal economy.

FRENCH LANGUAGE AND SOCIETY

FRENCH LANGUAGE

This course aims to develop students' ability to demonstrate some understanding of the French language, as well as speak, read and write French with relative proficiency.

In small groups, students will gain fluency in French while increasing their knowledge of France. Professors will help students to develop their communication skills through regular class discussions, one-on-one conversations, role plays and oral presentations with classmates.

FRENCH SOCIETY AND POLITICS

We offer students the possibility to learn about contemporary French society and cultures by examining its products, practices and perspectives through thematic study.

This seminar intends to present the main aspects of the French society, compared with other European industrialized countries. Indeed, the main objective is to analyze how the French society works, taking into account some of the main historical steps which established the basis of the welfare system, of the labor market, the role of women in society, the system of education, globalization etc.
